Jennifer has an extensive background in strategic and financial consulting, having worked as a strategy consultant for Mitchell Madison Group in New York before joining National City Corporation (now a part of PNC) in 2001. For the next nine years, Jennifer served the financial institution first as Senior Vice President and Director of Business Performance Improvement and subsequently as Senior Vice President, Retail Deposits Product Management, overseeing a $40 billion Certificate of Deposit portfolio. Jennifer earned her B.A. in Mathematical Economics from Wesleyan University and her M.B.A. from the University of Chicago. Jennifer has extensive experience in Six Sigma and other performance improvement methodologies.

Eager to utilize her vast experience in operations and finance management, Jennifer joined BrownFlynn and its sustainability training and education division, BrownFlynn Learning, as the team's director of operations in March 2010. Jennifer is poised to help grow and develop the corporate responsibility and sustainability consulting firm—not only in this region but across the country. Jennifer is married, has two young children and is treasurer of St. Paul's Cooperative Preschool.
